

Vertical Shaft: A central vertical shaft extending through the building, providing a common vertical path for all levels.

Horizontal Levels: Multiple horizontal levels branching off from the central shaft, representing different floors or sections of the building.

Vertical Shaft: A central vertical shaft extending through the building, providing a common vertical path for all levels.

Horizontal Levels: Multiple horizontal levels branching off from the central shaft, representing different floors or sections of the building.

Vertical Shaft: A central vertical shaft extending through the building, providing a common vertical path for all levels.

Horizontal Levels: Multiple horizontal levels branching off from the central shaft, representing different floors or sections of the building.

Vertical Shaft: A central vertical shaft extending through the building, providing a common vertical path for all levels.

Horizontal Levels: Multiple horizontal levels branching off from the central shaft, representing different floors or sections of the building.

Vertical Shaft: A central vertical shaft extending through the building, providing a common vertical path for all levels.

Horizontal Levels: Multiple horizontal levels branching off from the central shaft, representing different floors or sections of the building.

Vertical Shaft: A central vertical shaft extending through the building, providing a common vertical path for all levels.

Horizontal Levels: Multiple horizontal levels branching off from the central shaft, representing different floors or sections of the building.

Vertical Shaft: A central vertical shaft extending through the building, providing a common vertical path for all levels.

Horizontal Levels: Multiple horizontal levels branching off from the central shaft, representing different floors or sections of the building.

